

The Principal, Makerere University Business School to present the following for the Conferment of the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

KOBUSINGYE Jacinta Bwegyeme (Ms)

Action learning in private and public universities

Ms. KOBUSINGYE Jacinta Kobusingye’s study examined how private and public universities can experience successful action learning through the nurturing of the community of practice and enhancing situated learning, discovery learning, problem based learning and experiential learning. Based on the findings, a model was developed revealing that the drivers of action learning are reflective practice, community of practice, experiential learning, knowledge sharing and the reflective environment. This study articulates that, if universities are to have effective action learning, the universities must support the reflective environment without neglecting reflective practice, experience of their employees and the role of community of practice in knowledge sharing. This study was funded by Uganda Martyrs University, and was supervised by Prof. John C. Munene, Prof. Geoffrey Bakunda and Assoc. Prof. James Kagaari.

KYAZZE Musiitwa Lawrence

Cooperative governance, cooperative practices, democratic control systems and social performance of cooperative societies

Mr. Kyazze Musiitwa Lawrence’s study explains how cooperative governance, cooperative practices, democratic control systems can improve social performance of cooperative societies in Uganda. Based on the findings, the study articulates and benefits stakeholders that the improved social responsibility, quality services and benefits to members, are a necessity. Cooperative management, should therefore continually monitor, be innovative and policy compliant, accountable and legitimize operations. This study was self-sponsored and supervised by Prof. John C. Munene, Prof. Joseph M. Ntayi, Prof. Augustine Ahiauzu and Dr. Isaac Nkote.

Conferment of the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

MUSIGIRE Samuel

Market orientation, strategic ambidexterity and sales performance of Uganda’s financial services

Mr. Musigire Samuel’s research examined whether sales performance of financial services in Uganda could be increased through the simultaneous implementation of market orientation, strategic ambidexterity and organizational support, with competitive advantage as a mediator. This study showed that integration of market orientation, strategic ambidexterity and organizational support improve sales performance. Furthermore, competitive advantage mediated the relationship between market orientation and sales performance and between organizational support and sales performance, but did not mediate the association between strategic ambidexterity and sales performance. The study concluded that financial services managers in Uganda should regularly develop products, and design processes that cater for both new and existing customers. Managers should also support sales staff to enable them execute the selling task effectively and efficiently. This study was sponsored by MUBS and supervised by Prof. Augustine I. Ahiauzu and Prof. Joseph M. Ntayi.

Conferment of the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

MWEBAZA Edith Basalirwa (Ms)

Perceived value of entrepreneurship education, social competences and entrepreneurial proclivity among university graduates in Uganda

Ms. MWEBAZA Edith Basalirwa examined entrepreneurial proclivity of university graduates in Uganda. Factors that underpinned entrepreneurial proclivity were addressed through entrepreneurial competences, perceived value of entrepreneurship education and social competences. Findings reveal that acquiring entrepreneurial competences enhances entrepreneurial proclivity. Equally, appropriate perceived value of entrepreneurship education and suitable social competences promote entrepreneurial competences. Broadly, university graduates should be proactive, innovative, risk takers and able to start-up businesses in order to promote their entrepreneurial proclivity. Entrepreneurship education at university level should be widely recognised and publicised in society. The study was jointly funded by DANIDA and MUBS and supervised by Prof. Katherine V. Gough, Prof. Waswa Balunywa and Dr Warren Byabashajja (RIP).

Conferment of the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

KATONGOLE Celestine

Women entrepreneurs’ resources and micro enterprise success

Mr. Katongole examined how women entrepreneur’s social and intrapersonal resources were related to success in micro and small scale enterprises. He found that educated women were more likely to perceive success in terms of making profit, expanding stock in business, opening more branches and creating jobs. Less educated women perceived success mainly in terms of socio-economic emancipation, freedom from paid employment and satisfaction with self. Furthermore, intrapersonal resources (formal and informal entrepreneurial training and education) supported entrepreneurial competence than general formal schooling. Women entrepreneurs who were trusted and returned favors to friends were less likely to succeed financially but non-financially. Provision of formal and informal entrepreneurial training, makes micro women entrepreneurs more likely to succeed. But in the MSE sector, one needs less trust to succeed financially because many people abuse trust. This study was self-funded and supervised by Prof. John C. Munene, Assoc. Prof. Arthur Sserwanga, and Dr. Muhammed Ngoma.

NAKYEYUNE Gorrettie (Ms)

Management mechanisms and public finance regulatory compliance by Central Government Agencies in Uganda.

Ms. Nakyeyune Gorrettie's study explains how central government agencies in Uganda can improve their management mechanisms to enhance public finance regulatory compliance. The findings based on 67 central government agencies developed a model, which reveals that stewardship behaviour and deterrence measures are important aspects in the improvement of public finance regulatory compliance in a developing country setting. This study posits that managers in central government agencies in Uganda should continuously create stewardship behaviours through the facet of leadership support and organisational commitment. Moreover, the strengthening of deterrence measures, emphasising the role of oversight organs, instituting of penalties and observation of procedural justice are key. This study was funded by MUBS and supervised by Prof. Ven Tauringana, Prof. Joseph M Ntayi and Prof John C. Munene.

Conferment of the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

OKELLO George Candiya

Financial inclusion of the poor in Uganda

Mr. Okello examined financial inclusion of the poor in Uganda. Previous studies have concentrated only on supply side factors and ignored demand side factors. Besides, institutional frameworks of regulative (formal rules), normative (informal rules), and procedural & declarative cultural cognitive have been ignored, leading to both voluntary and involuntary exclusion of the poor. The study found that integrating institutional frameworks with financial intermediation and financial literacy mediated by social capital and networks enhanced financial behaviours, decisions, and choices of the poor towards being financially included. The findings will guide policy to develop a holistic institutional approach to include regulative, normative, and procedural & declarative cultural cognitive in order to financially include the poor. Government should develop and adapt institutional frameworks that supports combined functioning of regulative normative, and procedural & declarative cultural cognitive. This study was self-funded and supervised by Prof. J.C Munene, Prof. Joseph M. Ntayi, and Dr. Isaac Nkote Nabeta.

Conferment of the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

ONYANGO-DELEWA Paul

Financial planning, central government patronage, donor aid, and budget performance in local government

Mr. Onyango-Delewa's doctoral studies focused on what determines budget performance in local government. In his analysis, he employed operations of 28 Uganda's local governments to demonstrate that financial planning, central government patronage, and donor aid play an important role in explaining budget performance. He also demonstrated that for financial planning, central government patronage and donor aid to influence budget performance, local governments need to be fiscally and functionally autonomous. His research advances understandability of fiscal decentralization especially in newly decentralizing nations and addresses issues of budgeting, financial accountability, and transparency. This study was self-funded and was supervised by Prof. John C. Munene, Dr. Isaac N. Nkote, and Dr. Isaac Kayongo.

OTENGEI Samson Omuudu

Internationalization of African-ethnic restaurants: the mediating role of brand identity

Mr. OTENGEI Samson Omuudu study investigated the mediating role of brand identity on the effect of firm-specific resources and dynamic capabilities on the degree of internationalization of African-ethnic restaurants in East Africa. The study established that inward internationalization is the dominant form of internationalization while outward internationalization is non-existent and considered unfeasible strategy. Brand identity fully and partially mediates the relationship between restaurant-specific resources and dynamic capabilities and, the degree of inward internationalization respectively. The study strengthens the dynamic capabilities view that solely depending on unique resources may not help firms achieve effective internationalisation in rapidly changing markets without brand identity. A model of inward internationalization of African-ethnic restaurants is proposed with implications for policy and managerial practice. This study was funded by Makerere University Business School and supervised by Prof. Geoffrey Bakunda, Prof. Joseph Ntayi and Dr. Mohammed Ngoma.

OWINO Philip

Hierarchical Structure and Responsibility Accounting In Ugandan Public Universities

Mr. Owino examined the relationship between Hierarchical Structure and Responsibility Accounting in Ugandan Public Universities. The study provides a status on how responsibility accounting is being practised in public universities in Uganda. The study found that responsibility accounting is implemented following agency relations and adherence to institutional behaviour. Responsibility accounting is vested in costs and revenue performance, which are managed through consultations and adherence to public regulations from one area of control to another within university hierarchy. The study was funded by Kyambogo University and supervised by Professor John C. Munene, Prof. Joseph M. Ntayi and Prof. Pascal Ngoboka.

ZIADE Hailu Weldu Fesseha

Property Rights and Investment Performance: A Study of Households in Urban Ethiopia

Mr. Ziade Hailu's study explains how property rights, contract enforcement and bureaucratic performance can improve investment in owners occupied housing in Ethiopia. His thesis departs from neo-classical economic tradition to employing the conceptual and analytical tools of New Institutional Economics (NIE) to study factors that may influence investment performance. While appreciating NIE for highlighting the prominence of institutions within development agenda, the thesis argues that when applied to an environment where weak property rights enforcement institutions exist some aspects of institutionalist assumptions are unsubstantiated. The study provides evidence that although creating laws and allocating property rights are important steps to promote investment, legal reforms and acquiring property rights is not enough: effective and efficient administrative and bureaucratic structures must exist to enforce these laws in order to achieve investment. This study was self-funded and supervised by Prof. John C. Munene, Prof. Augustine Ahiauzu and Dr. Isaac Nkote.
